

Just because we can't get together and mark VE Day with our extended friends and family, it doesn't mean there aren't ways to celebrate within the safe bubbles of our own homes.

Dedicated programmes will be broadcast to help you get involved in the celebrations.

11am | BBC One | The Nation Remembers

BBC One will lead a poignant two-minute silence to mark the 75th anniversary of the end of the Second World War

2:45pm | BBC One | The Announcement of Victory

Winston Churchill's historic speech will also be broadcast - providing a fascinating insight into what the public will have heard on that significant day all those years ago

8pm | BBC One | The People's Celebration

Viewers can also tune in to a special programme, which will see some of the UK's biggest stars (Katherine Jenkins, Beverley Knight), sing a rendition of the iconic 'We'll Meet Again', by Vera Lynn. Throughout the show, we will hear from the real stars of the night, the people who still remember that historic evening and can tell us what it was like, first hand

9pm | BBC One | The Queen's Speech

The Queen herself will be giving a special address to the nation (her second during the coronavirus pandemic), at 9am on 8th May – which is the exact same time that her father, King George VI, spoke to the UK 75 years ago, on the actual VE Day
